As such, the covered individuals are granted liability protection under the Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA). With this coverage, any limits that may be required by other entities are met.

NOTICE OF PRIVACY PRACTICES

THIS NOTICE DESCRIBES HOW MEDICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU MAY BE USED AND DISCLOSED AND HOW YOU CAN GET ACCESS TO THIS INFORMATION. PLEASE REVIEW IT CAREFULLY.

If you have any questions about this notice, please contact One Community Health's Privacy Officer at 877-316-0213.

One Community Health does not intimidate, threaten, coerce, discriminate against, or take other retaliatory action against an individual for the exercise by the individual of any right established, or for participation in any process provided for, by the Privacy Rule, HIPAA, ONC's Cures Act, CMIA, and any other applicable federal or state law.

Our Pledge Regarding Medical Information

We understand that information about you and your health is personal. We are committed to protecting the confidentiality of your medical information. We create a record of the care and services you receive at One Community Health, and we may receive such records from others. We use these records to provide you with quality medical care and to comply with certain other legal requirements. This Notice tells you about the ways in which we may use and disclose medical information about you. It also describes your rights, and certain obligations we have regarding the use and disclosure of your information. We are required by law to:

- make sure that medical information that identifies you is kept private;
- give you this Notice of our legal duties and privacy practices with respect to medical information about you; and
- follow the terms of the Notice that is currently in effect.

Who Will Follow This Notice

This Notice describes One Community Health's practices and those of:

- any health care professional authorized to enter information into your medical chart;
- One Community Health Pharmacy, and;
- All employees, contractors, volunteers, staff, and other One Community Health personnel.

How One Community Health May Use or Disclose Your Health Information

The following categories describe the different ways that we may lawfully use and disclose medical information. The examples are not provided as an all-inclusive list of the ways your health information may be used. They are provided to describe, in general, the types of uses and disclosures that may be made.

1. For Treatment. We may use medical and social services information about you to provide you with comprehensive medical, dental, pharmacy, and social services. For example, we may disclose health information about you to One Community Health doctors, nurses, technicians, case workers, and other One Community Health employees who are involved in providing the care you need. We might also share your protected health information with a non-One Community Health provider or entity in order to provide or coordinate non-One Community Health Services, such as ordering outside lab work or an x-ray.

2. For Payment. We may use and disclose medical information about you to obtain payment for the services we provide. For example, we give your health plan the information it requires before it will pay us. We may also contact a health plan or third-party payor about a treatment or service you are going to receive to obtain prior approval or to determine what your plan may cover.
3. For Health Care Operations. We may use and disclose protected health information about you to operate this clinic. These uses and disclosures are necessary to run One Community Health and ensure that all of our patients receive quality care. For example, we may use medical information to review our treatment and services and to evaluate the staff caring for you. We may also combine information about many clinic patients to make operational decisions, for example, to determine what additional services the clinic should offer, or if a certain treatment is effective. We may also disclose information to our staff for learning and review purposes. We may also compare the information we have with other clinics or organizations to compare how we are doing and to make improvements in the services and care we offer. We may remove information that identifies you from these sets of medical information so that others may use it without learning who the specific patient is.

We may also share your protected health information with a third-party "business associate" that is assisting us with clinic operations. For example, we might share protected health information with a billing service performing administrative services, or with an information technology firm assisting us with our electronic medical record maintenance. Information might also be disclosed to a third party for the purposes of encrypting, encoding, or otherwise anonymizing the data. We have a written contract with each of these business associates requiring them to protect the confidentiality of your protected health information.

4. For Health-related Benefits and Alternative Services. We may use and disclose medical information to tell you about health-related services, benefits, or programs that might benefit you. We may also disclose medical information to tell you about or recommend possible treatment options or alternatives.

5. To Individuals Involved in Your Care. We may release health information about you to a friend or family member who is involved in your medical care or who helps pay for your care. In addition, in the event of a disaster, we may disclose information about you to an entity assisting in a disaster relief effort. California law requires that only basic information such as your name, city of residence, age, sex, and general condition be provided in response to a disaster welfare inquiry.

If you have given someone power of attorney, or if someone is your legal guardian, that person may be able to exercise your rights, and make choices about your health information. We will make sure the person has the authority, and can act for you, before we take any action.

6. As Required by Law. We will disclose medical information about you when required to do so by federal, state, or local law. For example, in some circumstances the law may require your physician to report instances of abuse, violence, or neglect.
7. To Avert a Serious Threat to Health or Safety. We may use or disclose medical information about you when necessary to prevent a serious threat to your health and safety or the health and safety of the public or another person. Any disclosure, however, would only be to someone able to help prevent or lessen the threat.

8. For Research Purposes. In accordance with One Community Health's mission to improve the quality of care and services provided to those individuals living with HIV/AIDS, One Community Health participates in numerous research projects conducted by the University of California-Davis Health System, Division of Infectious Disease ("UC Davis"). All research projects conducted by UC Davis are reviewed and approved through a special review process to protect patient safety, welfare, and confidentiality. Your medical information may be important to research efforts and the development of new knowledge. We may use and disclose medical information for this purpose. On occasion, UC Davis researchers, or one of your health care providers, may contact you about participating in a particular study. Your enrollment in any study is completely voluntary and enrollment can only occur if you have had the opportunity to ask questions, understand the study, and indicate your willingness to participate by signing a consent form. Other studies may be performed using information about your treatment without requiring informed consent. For example, a research study may involve comparing the health of patients who receive one medication to those patients on another treatment regimen.

Special Situations

9. Public Health Risks. We may disclose information about you for public health purposes. These purposes generally include the following:
 - a. preventing or controlling diseases (such as cancer and tuberculosis), injury, or disability;
 - b. reporting vital events such as births and deaths;
 - c. reporting child abuse or neglect;
 - d. reporting adverse events or reactions related to foods, drugs, or products;

 - f. notifying a person who may have been exposed to a disease or may be at risk of contracting or spreading a disease or condition;
 - g. notifying the appropriate government authority if we believe a patient has been the victim of abuse, neglect, or domestic violence, and make this disclosure as required or authorized by law.
10. Health Oversight Activities. We may disclose medical information to governmental, licensing, auditing, and accrediting agencies for activities authorized by federal and California law.
11. Lawsuits and Other Legal Actions. In connection with lawsuits or other legal proceedings, we may disclose information about you in response to a court or administrative order, or in response to a subpoena, discovery request, warrant, summons, or other lawful proceeding.
12. Law Enforcement. We may, when required by law, disclose your health information to a law enforcement official when complying with a court order, warrant, grand jury subpoena, and for other law enforcement purposes.
13. Coroners, Medical Examiners, and Funeral Directors. We may, and are often required by law, to disclose your health information to coroners, medical examiners, and/or funeral directors in order to assist these professionals with their investigation of death or to enable them to carry out their professional duties.
14. Organ and Tissue Donation. We may disclose your health information to organizations involved in procuring, banking, or transplanting organs and tissues. You may request, in writing, a restriction on how much information we share when responding to requests about the appropriateness of procuring, banking, or transplanting organs and tissue. Since HIV usually represents a reason not to do these activities, you may ask us in writing to simply say it is not medically appropriate without providing more information about the reasons why it is not appropriate.

15. Military, National Security, and Intelligence Activities. As required by law, we may disclose medical information about you to authorized federal officials for intelligence, counterintelligence, and other national security activities authorized by law. We may also release medical information about you to federal officials so they may provide protection to the President, other authorized persons, or foreign heads of states. Also, if you are or were a member of the armed forces, we may release information about you to military command authorities if the law so requires.

16. Inmates. If you are an inmate of a correctional institution, or under the custody of law enforcement officials, we may release medical information about you to the correctional institution or to a law enforcement official. This release would be necessary:

- a. for the institution to provide you with health care;
- b. to protect your health and safety or the safety of others; or
- c. for the safety and security of the correctional institution.

17. Worker's Compensation. We may disclose your health information as necessary to comply with Worker's Compensation laws.

These programs provide benefits for work-related injuries or illnesses. For example, to the extent your care is covered by Workers' Compensation, we will make periodic reports to your employer about your condition. If required by law, we may report cases of occupational injury or occupational illness to the employer or worker's compensation insurer.

18. Outreach and Fundraising Activities. We will not use or disclose your personal medical information in any of our outreach or fundraising activities. However, we may use aggregate demographic data for such activities. For example, we might create a brochure to hand out at events that lists the number of One Community Health patients and provides basic demographic information about our patients in aggregate. We may also send out fundraising information to individuals who have made donations in the past, or future and past patients. If you want to exclude your personal information from being used in this way, notify the Privacy Officer at the telephone number listed at the top of this Notice.

We Never Sell Your Information

19. Marketing and sales. We will never use your information for marketing purposes without first obtaining your express written consent.

For insured patients, One Community Health will submit claims to your insurance either by electronic submission or mailing a paper claim. The claim will list services provided to you at the time of your visit. If your insurance company informs us that you are responsible for a copayment, deductible, share of cost, or in some cases an uncovered service, One Community Health will bill you directly.
